Course objectives	Student's benefits
Tracing drama's origins from religious rituals, the course provides a picture of English drama of the Renaissance period. Naturally enough, Shakespeare is the dominant author. His contemporaries and colleagues Thomas Kyd and Christopher Marlowe are represented with their masterpieces. The study of these three major playwrights and their work, including through close readings of the masterpieces, shall provide students with a unique opportunity to engage with these plays as works of literature in the first place, but also as performance(s) for/in the stage.	Students should acquaint themselves with the most prominent features of English Renaissance Drama (see left-hand side of this page). Students will develop drama interpreting skills – appreciation of arguably some of the greatest English plays which, in turn, top world literature. Enhancing research and presentation skills in drama as both literary text and performance, diachronically and synchronically.

Teaching methodology: Both lectures and seminar classes. Students are expected to have done a lot of essential reading beforehand, so that close reading and re-reading of excerpts from the plays takes place in the classroom, wherein an inquisitive mind and a spirit of debate are encouraged.

Required tools:
Hand-outs. Copies of plays.
Evaluation criteria (in %):

REMARKS

A lot of the material will be provided as hand-outs. Students will be expected to have read the works (plays) closely beforehand.

Remarks to the student:

Absence will affect the final grade. The policy is straightforward: if you are absent or negligent, you are responsible for what you have missed. No usage of phones during classes and tests/final exam. Last but not least, full respect for universally-recognized academic policies and standards (the Bologna system).
